

The linden as an editorial meeting device

A handout for the Linden Archive Project conference paper

Working proposition

The recurring linden image in the fictional Linden Correspondence Series is best read as an editorial meeting device rather than as a stable national symbol. The argument follows material marks, language shifts, circulation notes, and later reception.

Anchor source

LA-SRC-B14-F184 is a synthetic four-page letter dated 1907-03-16 from Elinor Vale to Lucien Moreau. The research cross-reference is citation LA-042. This handout presents no authentic historical quotation.

Sequence	Editorial role
F181	Vale draft
F183	Moreau enclosure
F184	Letter / anchor source
F186	Weiss note
F188	Vale revision
F191	Moreau proof
F193	Mori gloss
F196	Vale response

Seminar prompts

1. Which material marks change how a phrase travels? 2. What is gained by retaining linden / tilleul / Linde / the Japanese rendering in parallel? 3. Where does editorial coordination become visible in the Box 14 sequence?
