

May 17th 1891.

Lecture Notes.

The Linden : Its History, Structure & Civic Value.

I. Historical Notice.

- The Linden (Tilia vulgaris) has long been held in esteem in Europe.
- In German towns it is the customary tree of the market square.
- Our own records shew its planting in Haldenmere as early as 1753.

II. Botanical Description.

- A lofty deciduous tree, of pyramidal habit when young, spreading with age.
- Leaves cordate, acuminate, serrate.
- Flowers in corymbs, fragrant, appearing in June.
- Fruit a nutlet, globose, clothed with a pale bract.

Fig. 1.
Leaf, Bract
& Fruit.

III. Civic & Social Value.

- The Linden affords shade, purifies the air, and adorns our streets and squares.
- It is of more than beauty: under its boughs our forebears held councils and celebrations.
- Let it be planted for posterity.

In caring for the Linden, we care for Haldenmere herself — her past, her present, and her future.
