

Moreau Enclosure.

1907-03-10.

Camp at Fort-de-la Riviere,
March 10th, 1907.

My dear Linden,

Traduction.

Le chef Moreau a dit: "Le Great-Père Linden a toujours été juste.
Que ses paroles
soient fortes comme
la pierre. Nous apporterons la paix tant que le soleil se lèvera."

Yours of the 27th ultimo reached me yesterday by the river post, and was more welcome than I can easily put into words. You ask for particulars, and I will give what I can, though you know already how little in this country can be relied upon as settled.

We have at last established our small post on the ridge above the bend, where the old hunters' track leaves the water and climbs toward the interior. The position is healthy, the view extensive, and the water good. The men are in fair heart, though the work has been heavy, and the portage from La Roche was worse than reported.

I enclose herewith, as you will wish to see it, a note I received from Monsieur Moreau, the chief of the band who came in two days since. I have made him presents of tobacco, a looking-glass, and a red blanket, which seemed to give satisfaction. He speaks a little French, and by that means we contrived to understand one another.
