

Interview Conflict of Interest Policy

Internal synthetic policy | Effective 18 August 2026 | Review due 18 August 2027

Policy owner	People Operations
Applies to	Orchid People role labels and approved systems only
Status	Internal operating standard; not legal advice

Purpose and scope

- Protects the fairness and credibility of selection decisions by identifying and managing actual, potential, or perceived conflicts in interviews.
- This document describes an internal Orchid People operating standard. It does not create contractual rights and should be applied with local guidance approved for the relevant work.

Principles

- Disclose conflicts early; disclosure is not itself misconduct.
- Use a proportionate mitigation that preserves a fair assessment.
- Keep conflict information limited to the review decision and necessary process record.

Required workflow

- Before participating, an interviewer confirms no conflict or submits a brief internal disclosure.
- People Operations selects a mitigation: recusal, reassignment, additional calibrated interviewer, or documented monitoring.
- The interview panel receives only the operational instruction needed to proceed.

Controls, evidence and exceptions

- Interview feedback must address role criteria, not relationship context.
- People Operations records the mitigation and completion status.
- Urgent exceptions require documented approval before the interview begins.

Roles and review cycle

- People Operations maintains the policy, trains role holders, and records approved exceptions. Managers apply the policy within their teams. Workforce participants raise questions before taking an uncertain action.
- People Operations reviews this policy annually, after a material process change, or after a confirmed control gap. Version history: v1.0 issued 18 August 2026.
