

Employee Referral Policy

Internal synthetic policy | Effective 18 August 2026 | Review due 18 August 2027

Policy owner	People Operations
Applies to	Orchid People role labels and approved systems only
Status	Internal operating standard; not legal advice

Purpose and scope

- Provides a transparent internal process for referring potential applicants without bypassing role criteria, confidentiality controls, or equitable assessment.
- This document describes an internal Orchid People operating standard. It does not create contractual rights and should be applied with local guidance approved for the relevant work.

Principles

- A referral is a source of interest, not a preference in selection.
- Referred candidates follow the same job-related assessment path as other candidates.
- Referral participation must not require sharing confidential candidate information.

Required workflow

- A workforce participant submits the referral through the approved process with only required information.
- People Operations confirms the requisition match and records the referral source.
- Selection panels assess against the role rubric; referral source is not a scored criterion.

Controls, evidence and exceptions

- People Operations monitors referral process consistency and keeps source records access-limited.
- Do not discuss candidate status beyond authorized process updates.
- Exceptions are rare and must be approved in writing before action.

Roles and review cycle

- People Operations maintains the policy, trains role holders, and records approved exceptions. Managers apply the policy within their teams. Workforce participants raise questions before taking an uncertain action.
- People Operations reviews this policy annually, after a material process change, or after a confirmed control gap. Version history: v1.0 issued 18 August 2026.
