

Task: Compare the two library wayfinding sources below.
Use evidence from both sources.

Source A: Heritage Library Brochure (2025)

Source B: Digital Kiosk Map (2025)

1) Similarities

- Both show the same six main locations: Entrance, Fiction, Children's Area, Reference, Quiet Study, and Café.
- Both use a green star to mark "You Are Here" at the Entrance.
- Both include elevators, stairs, restrooms, and an information desk.
- Both use blue solid lines for main paths and blue dashed lines for secondary paths.

2) Differences

- Source A has a more rectangular layout; Source B has a circular layout with an Atrium.
- In Source A, the information desk is near the Entrance; in Source B, it is in the Atrium.
- In Source A, stairs are on the right side and upper left; in Source B, they are on the left and lower right.
- Source A labels the center area as a hallway; Source B labels it "Atrium".
- Source B shows the north direction; Source A does not.

3) Which source is more helpful?

Source B is more helpful for first-time visitors because the Atrium is clearly shown as the central hub, and the paths to each area are easy to see. However, Source A is better for finding nearby services quickly since the legend is beside the map and the information desk is close to the Entrance.

4) Conclusion

Both sources provide useful wayfinding information. Source B is better for overall orientation, while Source A is better for quick reference near the entrance. Using both would help visitors the most.
